There are so many people I'd like to thank for their help with RUSC over the years.

I'd particularly like to thank Paul Ghilarducci for his frequent help, advice and encouragement and Hillel Ginton for his constant support over the years. Without your regular e-mails Hillel the site would be littered with spelling and grammatical errors. Thank you so much. Thanks also to Michael La Croix whose help with putting this guide together has been nothing short of a miracle. Without your help Michael this update simply wouldn't exist and certainly wouldn't look anywhere near as attractive as it does. You're a genius. Thanks also to Matt for always being there to help with technical matters. It's thanks in a big part to you that RUSC has such a proud up-time record. Thanks also go to all of the people who have contributed in any way over the years, be it a single review, a missing show or just a kind word, your efforts have never gone unnoticed.

I'd like to give a huge thanks to every person who has been a member of RUSC over the years, particularly to those who've been members for a long time. Without your ongoing support there'd definitely be no RUSC today and without your encouragement in the early days I'm sure I'd have given up at the first hurdle.

And of course a massive thank you goes out to every actor, producer, announcer, musician, foley artist, sponsor and anyone else who was involved in creating these audio masterpieces over the years. Without you this wonderful form of entertainment wouldn't exist and for that we are eternally in debt to you.

And last, but certainly not least, I'd like to thank my dear wife Joy, without whose constant love and support RUSC definitely would not exist. Thanks for your patience when I've burned the candle at both ends working on the site and for the contributions you've made in your own right. You're a star!

Welcome to The RUSC Radio Show Listing

A detailed list of the radio series and shows on RUSC as of November 17, 2009

Do you enjoy listening to old-time radio shows?

Maybe you remember dashing home from school to find out what happens next to your childhood hero. Or do you have fond memories of curling up under the bed sheets whilst listening to spine-tingling tales on your crystal radio set.

Maybe you don't remember the shows the first time round. It might be that you first heard them on re-broadcasts during the 1970s and 80s or maybe you're a youngster who's been introduced to them by a friend or relative.

However, you first came to old time radio shows the chances are you are now hooked, which is why you're reading the introduction to the RUSC Radio Show Listing Guide 2009.

If you are new to RUSC then you are in for a really pleasant treat as you've just discovered an Aladdin's cave of classic radio. A site that is overflowing with wonderful old radio shows from the 1930s, 40s and 50s.

Let me tell you a little bit about RUSC.COM.

RUSC was set-up in January 1999 to help old-time radio show fans enjoy these classic shows. The site is run by myself and my wife Joy. It is very much a labor of love for both of us.

RUSC provides downloadable and streaming access to thousands and thousands of old-time radio shows and new shows are added every day of the week (except for Wednesdays when Joy and myself put our feet up) and every week of the year.

All of the shows that were on the site as of November 17, 2009 are listed in this guide. All of them can be downloaded in standard MP3 format. You can burn them to CD, transfer them to portable MP3 players, or listen at your computer. If you don't want to download you can stream them directly to your computer using the RUSC-On-Demand feature, which is great if you're at work or anywhere else where downloading might not be convenient.

If you are not already a member of RUSC I hope that after taking a look at what is available in this guide you will realize what incredible value for money a subscription to RUSC represents. A monthly membership is just $7.50 and you can get it for as little as $5 per month if you take out an annual membership.

To become a member visit the url below and just click any of the "Join" buttons.

<http://www.rusc.com>

I hope I can welcome you as a subscriber to RUSC in the not too distant future.

Happy listening

The Adventures Of Ozzie & Harriet

The 3rd Degree

According to our detective fiction writers there was a time not too long ago when police authorities often resorted to prolonged and uninterrupted interrogation of criminal suspects this was known as the third degree. But what has that got to do with the rest of us. As we pay our weekly visit to the Nelsons of 1847 Rogers Road we look in on a typical family scene. Ozzie is leaning back in his favorite easy chair glancing through the evening paper and Harriet casually asks "anything exciting happened down town today?"...

How to Impress the Waitress

Comedy duo Bob Elliot and Ray Goulding discuss at great length how it is possible to work up a story which two people could use if they so wished, to impress a waitress in a restaurant. I suppose it all boils down to using the expression of words in a form of story with which you could influence other people into thinking you were something or someone which you are not but at the same time not telling deliberate and downright lies. The art lies in doing it within earshot of the waitress and not in actual conversation, as demonstrated by Messrs Elliot and Goulding.

Christmas Day Show Berlin Air lift

This Bob Hope show, which was broadcast in December 1948, came from Berlin in Germany. On Christmas day 4000 miles away from home thousands of American boys listened to a show that brought them a little home. They were the boys who keep the airlift in to Berlin running, the boys who gave up their Christmas to help strengthen the cause of humanity. Because of these men a child eats who might otherwise go hungry and the light of freedom burns more brightly in the world. To carry to these Americans overseas something of the fun and spirit of America, Bob Hope and his gang at the request of the United States Air forces flew to Berlin. What you are about to hear is the very same show they enjoyed on Christmas day 1948. The laughter is their laughter; the show was their special show.

Comedy:

A Day In The Life Of Dennis Day

Amnesia

It's late afternoon as we look in at the Anderson Boarding House in Weaver Ville where our young hero Dennis Day rooms. An afternoon you may think like any other, but if you did you'd be wrong for as far as our hero is concerned it is just about the greatest afternoon of his life. He's just burst open the front door of the Anderson house in a state of wild excitement to come face to face with his astonished girlfriend Mildred Anderson...

Ethel And Albert

Ethel Gets A Job In A Department Store

The married life of the Arbuckle's is pretty much the same as every other married life, that is the same trivial unimportant things happen to them that happens in the home life of the average American family. It may not be very exciting but there's usually a bright spot in the daily private life of Ethel and Albert.

Father Knows Best

An Efficient House

Starring Robert Young. The Anderson Kids are all down in the dumps at the thought of going back to school after the summer vacation but not so Mrs. Anderson, she's concerned that Father has done something to the house. Jim assures her that there's nothing to worry about; he hasn't done anything, well nothing much really!

An Uncontrolled Dog

Starring Robert Young. A decade or so before the turn of the twentieth century the city editor of the New York sun came up with a remarkably simple definition of what made news, "when a dog bites a man that's not news because it happens so often, but when a man bites a dog, that's news". In Springfield in the white framed house on Maple Street news has not been made thus far but its quite possible that by the end of the week a man named Anderson will bite a dog!

Audition Show

Ed James produced this Audition episode of Father Knows Best on December 20th 1948, which was eight months before the show was on the air in August 1949. In this episode the family were known as the Hendersons and not the Andersons as they were to become known to thousands of listeners. The show begins, "In an average town, Springfield, on an average street, Maple lives an average American family the Hendersons. The husband Jim is very much in love with his wife Margaret and they're both quite fond of their three children, Betty, Bud and Kathleen, which I should say, is an average way for parents to feel. On this particular morning, which is an average sort of day, the Hendersons are ready for an average sort of breakfast. Well they're supposed to be ready but you know how it is..."

Aunt Thelma Visits

When relatives arrive for a visit after a long absence, the opening remarks generally follow a very familiar pattern. Now Aunt Thelma who is stopping off at the Andersons between trains isn't one to change things. That's why we find the family gathered in the living room of the white-framed house on Maple Street with the conversation going something like this...

Babysitter Misery

Well you wouldn't think a public meeting with the local school board would cause much of a disturbance, but it is certainly creating havoc in the white-framed house on Maple Street. Jim Anderson who just a short time ago was preparing for a membership on the board now finds himself saddled for the evening with the job of babysitter for Bud, Cathy and one six year old George Kirby reputed to possess the destructive power of a tank and the disposition of a wounded tiger. How does Jim feel about this turn of misfortune? Not good...

Betty's Freedom

You know, I think a person could make a really nice business out of manufacturing a kit of aids for parents who are raising teenage youngsters. This kit I have in mind would contain such indispensable items as a crystal ball for determining the offspring's future, a book on mental telepathy so you can know what's going on in his mind, a dictionary of jive talk to facilitate conversation and most important of all a large economy sized bottle of Aunt Sarah's golden elixir of endless patience. Yes sir a kit like that should be a cinch to sell particularly to one Jim Anderson of 607 Maple Street. Look in and you'll see what I mean...

Betty's Screen Test

To be or not to be that is quite a question, whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of misfortune that are thrown at you or to take arms against the sea of problems, that's a question too and a problem. The Andersons are old hands when it comes to problems. Big problems little problems the Andersons have had them all!

Big Inheritance

We once knew a man who was extremely wealthy and he had a wonderful system for acquiring money, which we think, will interest you. He was up every day at six, worked fourteen hours a day seven days a week for almost twenty years. And then when he was only forty-five years of age his uncle died and left him three million dollars. Wasn't that nice? Of course a thing like that would never happen to our friends the Andersons but it almost did. Yes sir they came awfully close to being the richest family in Springfield...

The Boy Next Door

As far back as history has recorded our activities, woman has been a rather puzzling creature, especially when she's going through what is known as the teen age. A good case in point is Betty Anderson. But before we can reveal the capricious maneuvers of her feminine mind we must first look in on the principle male member of the family, Jim Anderson as he settles himself in the Den to do some work in the quiet of his home. Like this...

Bud Likes Girls

They say a mans home is his castle so possibly by the same token you might say a boys room in the home is also his private domain. Take Bud Anderson for example, he has always felt that his room upstairs in the white-framed house on Maple Street was traditionally his personal property. That's why on this Saturday morning we find young Bud protesting violently against an unprovoked invasion of his property...

A Carnival in Town

Towns and cities, like people have birthdays and Springfield is no exception. Infact Springfield celebrates its natal day each year with the annual founders day carnival, a fairly gordy and joyous affair held in the municipal auditorium. The towns shops and schools are closed and its citizens are urged to join together in the day long celebration. Grouped around the breakfast table in the white framed house in Maple Street in a holiday mood the members of the Anderson family are discussing the event.

Check Writing

To most Americans a bank is a fairly familiar institution; it's the place where you keep your money. It's the place where the guard in a black uniform rocks back and forth on his flat feet and watches you with a suspicious eye while you try to find the line that will move the fastest and never do. However there's one American by the name of Jim Anderson that lives in Springfield who feels that his particular family holds the national if not the international record for knowing less about the functions of a bank than any other group of humans on the face of the earth. How did he reach this conclusion? It all started one Saturday morning when Jim was at his desk in the den going over his checkbook, like this...

Benny Allen Feud 1of 6 The Vaudeville Days

Fred and Jack reminisce about their time working together in Vaudeville and Jack tells us of the time when he first met Fred when they were both appearing at the Metropolitan. Jack told Fred of his new idea for a radio program Benny's Boulevard where he would start knocking on doors and ask topical questions of four people, a Southern Senator, a rube who says "howdy bub", a Bronx housewife and an Irish man. Fred stole Benny's idea and that's why he hates him so much. However that is not the way that Fred Allen tells it!

Rushing home from work through the slushy streets of Summerfield Gildersleeve comes to a street corner where he finds his neighbor Mrs Bullard hesitating before a large puddle of slush. At once the gentleman comes out in him and he helps her across. As they walk on to the next corner she tells him about the problems they are having with their Craig. It seems that Leroy whom Craig worships and imitates, has told Craig that dancing school is a lot of nonsense and now Craig flatly refuses to go. Mrs Bullard asks Gildy to persuade Leroy to tell Craig that dancing school is not that bad.

Faculty Raffle

It's graduation week at Ivy and like every small college it has its own traditions and customs, which will be carried out by both students and faculty. For some it's a time of gaiety and excitement for others it's a time of tears and sadness. For Ivy's president Dr William Todhunter Hall it's a time of speech writing, conferences and the disposing of countless detailed matters but as he tells his wife, "it's amazing, everything is going as scheduled!"

Welcome to Ivy, Ivy College that is in the town of Ivy USA. Spring came to Ivy a few days ago and in spring, as we all know a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, just as it does in summer and autumn and winter! Some times it doesn't turn lightly at all but with a resounding crash and as in many crashes it's the innocent bystanders who are most shaken up. No bystanders are more innocent this evening than Dr William Todhunter Hall our Ivy's president and his wife...

Reappointment

Welcome to Ivy, the town of Ivy and Ivy College. It is coeducational and non-sectarian and its age is indicated by the fact that until recently the curriculum required two years of Greek. Ivy is all American. Its student body is a pretty fair cross section of our country's youthful seekers of knowledge with a small smattering of time wasters, those fun loving rovers who infest every college campus. Dr William Toddhunter Hall, PhD, LL.D and MA is president of Ivy, at least until the end of the month. His reappointment is under discussion now by the board of governors now meeting in the east wing of the library...

Welcome to Ivy, Ivy College that is in the town of Ivy USA. We suppose most people regard a college president when they happen to think of him at all as a man concerned only with scholarly matters such as a fat endowment or a new football stadium. But this is a most profound misconception. In most respects college presidents have the same interests as we do. At this moment for example Dr William Todhunter Hall the president of Ivy, sits book in hand seeking the answer to a question millions of thoughtful Americans are asking themselves tonight – Who Done it? Mrs Hall is going over the household accounts...

Riley Talks in His Sleep About Gertrude

Each evening after dinner Chester A Riley sits down and relaxes with the evening paper. This is one of our American institutions! Whatever is lacking in our daily lives the evening newspaper can provide. For the stout and sedentary businessman there's the sports page. For the meek and mild spinster there's the latest axe murder and for Riley - happily married for 18 years - there's the divorce news.

Mel Blanc Show

Mel Blanc was always a busy guy. Amongst his many credits include appearances on Abbot & Costello, Jack Benny, Point Sublime, Burns & Allen and Judy Canova. His non-radio appearances included the voices of Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig for Warner Brothers. He was born in San Francisco in 1908 and began collecting accents, dialects and characterizations in his youth. His first accent was a thick Yiddish that he picked-up from an old Jewish couple who ran a local grocery store. When his family moved to Portland he picked up a Chinese dialect and it wasn't long before he and his brother were appearing on local radio. He was a natural for his own comedy show, but never quite reached the dizzy heights of the likes of Jack Benny.

My Favorite Husband

The 10th Wedding Anniversary

As we look in on the Cooper household it's a bright sunshiny morning and outside the birds are singing and inside Liz Cooper is singing too. "Here comes the Bride, Here comes the bride". Now you may think this is an odd song to sing in the morning but this isn't just any morning, it's the Coopers 10th wedding anniversary and just thinking of being married to George for 10 old years makes Liz feel like singing...

April Fool

It's the 1st April and in My Favorite Husband Liz and George are busy trying to pull jokes on each other for Aprils Fools day. Liz planned to plant a lipstick-smudged handkerchief in George's pocket with the help of her maid Katy. George trying to wriggle out of the situation makes himself look really guilty of having an affair but then he owns up to knowing nothing about it and Liz comes clean that it is her idea of an April fool. However, then Katy tells Liz that she didn't manage to put the handkerchief in George's pocket. Oh dear, it seems that it was someone else's idea of an April Fool on George first. Now Liz is suspicious of George and wants to know how it got there. This episode is hilarious especially when George's friends' attempts to get him from under suspicion only send him deeper under. Oh dear, George is certainly not Liz's favorite husband!

First Show

Ten years ago the town's most eligible bachelor George Cougat married socially prominent Elizabeth Elliott. The lavish wedding kept the society columns of newspapers all over the country in copy for weeks. After their Honeymoon George bought a stylish suburban house and took the first job that came along – fifth vice president of a bank. And now the Cougat's are just George and Liz, two people who live together and like it. George says, "When I married Liz, she didn't know a thing about keeping house, she couldn't cook, she couldn't sew, she couldn't clean. But later she overcame the lack of domesticity in a most ingenious manner." Liz says, "I got a maid!"

Stan Freberg Show

Abominable Snowman Revisited

Off to the Himalayas this week to meet Stan's Old friend, Francis, ten and a half feet tall in his bare footies and all the way from Northern India. He brings his friend with him this time so you get an introduction not only to Francis but you can also meet his girlfriend Gladys. Then of course there's another sketch with Mr. Robert E. Tainter, who as you'll remember covers historical dirty linen. There's a suggestion that Washington had his moments. Add to this a duet between Peggy Taylor and Stan and you have the makings of another half an hour of good entertainment.

Good Humor Man

The 8th in the series with the usual crowd of talent involved. Freberg, Barnum and May, with Peggy Taylor, Jud Conlan and The Rhythmaires. Together with June Foray and Daws Butler and Peter Leeds. Only Freberg could introduce an Acrobatic act on radio. Stan and Daws put together a memorable screen play about those fearless men... "The Ice Cream Salesman" and the hardships they have to endure. As Freberg says, "It's no joke listening to Pop goes the Weasel at every street end, day after day."

Great Moments in History

4th show in the series, and this week's theme is as the title suggests, Great moments in history and its Freberg's interpretation of Paul Revere's famous ride. The time is April 18th 1775 and Revere is about to get on his horse at least he will do if the right amount of money is forthcoming. You know what Freberg's satirical humor is like. Billy May and his boys and Peggy Taylor help lighten the seriousness of it all.

Last Show, The Best of

Sadly this was the last of the Stan Freberg Shows and for their farewell they picked out the best of what had gone before. Peggy Taylor sings "Birth of the Blues", Bang Gunley rides out to look at the spread in that fast moving western U.S. Marshall. Stan gives his rendition of "The Banana Boat Song" as only he can. Billy May adds his musical bit to the last show and the Abominable Francis shows up to keep the laughter going on and on, right to the end.

The Lone Analyst

Another one of those crazy ideas of Stan Freberg and Pete Barnum that perhaps the country would be a better place to live in, if the government spent less money on training Lawmen and more on training Analysts. To prove their point, the role of The Lone Ranger becomes The Lone Analyst and you can well imagine what gets written into that... Kimo savvy... or is it savi... heck, who cares, so long as you enjoy it.

Miss Jupiter

One of the last radio series which commanded a large financial input because at this time radio was competing head on with television. Other programs were already using canned music but Freberg managed to persuade the people at the top that Billy May and his entire orchestra were a better proposition for a live audience in spite of the expense. Live audiences were essential to Freberg's stock in trade that was topical satire. This was the third show in the series.

Orville Arrives from the Moon

5th show in the series, with Stan Freberg and Peter Leeds. Believe it or not, but a flying saucer was actually captured by Mr. Leroy Phipps of Wyrca California, and the report on this is reported by Stan who interviews Mr. Phipps. Turns out that Orville is not only the occupant of the saucer but he is also the brother of Miss Jupiter. If you're interested you can also learn a lot about electrons from that knowledgeable expert, Professor Herman Horne.

Rocket Sled

Tonight's thrilling episode includes a report by Herman Busby and his interview with Leroy Straddle who is preparing to trot alongside the colonel's rocket sled whilst he is attempting to break the world speed rocket. The program contains some rather bizarre items, (including the rocket sled report,) and one by George Salt entitled "Thrilling knots I have tied", a song by Peggy Taylor and a musical rendering of "Five foot two Eyes of blue" by Billy May in his stocking feet.

Sponsored by Freberg

The 14th show in the series and once again brought to you by R.A.D.I.O. Freberg decides the time has come to sponsor his own show and he is ably backed by the rest of the crew. Peggy Taylor as usual is in good voice singing "Love is Mine" and it also gives a good insight as to why you should never use "World Advertising" to let the public know about your business. The rest of the show is up to its usual non-stop comical standard.

The Biddle Riddle Caper

Killer At Large is a radio station whose sponsors pay $50,000 for the arrest and conviction of a killer at large. The twist is that they deal with real facts, real people and real crimes and real criminals. With a tape recorder they reconstruct one of San Francisco's more sensational unsolved crimes the murder of Carol Stevens. The show is made up of the simple and honest spontaneous statements of witnesses themselves. The radio show is set on this case except for the statement of one man, Jimmy Biddle who had been top suspect until he came up with an alibi. The radio show had been unable to find him until now when he turned up claiming to know whom the murderer was and wanting to claim the $50,000. The radio program employs Private Detective Sam Spade to investigate.

Case History of Dallas Egan

The criminologist is often asked what are the contributory causes of crime. This of course is a complicated subject and cannot be treated in a few words but it may be safely said that it is rarely hereditary but almost always physical and social environment that is lack of proper home conditions, lack of good influence and bad companionship. One of the worst of all influences springs from making a criminal a romantic glamorous figure in whose footsteps it is easy and attractive to follow. The criminal possesses none of these attributes and should always be presented, as he is, a scourge of civilized society. Now listen to the case History of Dallas Egan...

The Case of the Three Grooved Bullets

This is the dramatization of a famous case to which the police had very slim and nebulous clues to work on. The case was almost hopeless but the men assigned to find the murderer of Barbara Moulder made it a matter of personal pride to bring the case to a successful conclusion. The story you are about to hear reveals what is one of the finest examples of sincere detective work from the annals of the Los Angeles police department. Our story tonight opens in June of 1928 when pretty Barbara Moulder a girl of nineteen is chatting gaily in her apartment with Mrs. Roberts a neighbor from across the hall...

The Man Who Talked

Criminals realize more or less that at all costs they must leave little or no evidence of their crime. They realize that their safety depends on that and they will go to any lengths in their anxiety to accomplish that end, even to the extent of committing another crime to cover up or destroy the visible evidence of the first crime. But in their twisted minds they fail to realize that the second crime is left wide open with no covering whatsoever and capture becomes inevitable. The police are trained to piece together evidence and once this is done the crime is uncovered and its commission traced to the criminal. The true story you are about to hear taken from Los Angeles police records is called The Man Who Talked.

Sometimes People Are Not Murdered

The officer who worked tirelessly in this case Detective Lieutenant Joe Philkus begins the story by telling us, "sometimes policemen make mistakes while only trying to do their duty. We police officers realize that circumstantial evidence may often convict an innocent man. While our officers find evidence of guilt they work tirelessly to uncover other facts. We work just as sincerely to prove of innocence as prove of guilt. Sometimes in a sincere attempt to serve justice policemen work hardships on individuals. Tonight the story tells of an investigation carried on by myself and my partner which nearly sent an innocent man to the gallows. We were doing our duty. The accused was innocent but could not prove him self so. The key to the strange mix-up was sealed by death on the lips of a supposed victim..."

The Kangaroo Court

It is a fact that every organization must have a set of rules or laws by which its members are governed. Law-breakers even in the underworld of organized crime are tried and if found guilty are punished swiftly. The law is always upheld but it is a fact as well that there is no reason to wait for gangs to punish their own offenders or for informers to assist society in the administration of its own law. All decent citizens once they make use of their free voices in civic affairs can ensure that societies laws are upheld and that crime of all kinds is punished and that in the end crime does not pay.

Kid With a Gun

Jacky Powers was born and grew up in a big city slum. He resented that, he resented the weary tenements, the grimy flats, the tired beaten people, among them his own mother and father. And as he sat on the stone stoop of the building where he lived, his cap on the back of his head a crumpled cigarette drooping from his lips Jacky made up his mind. He invited his friend Frank along with him, partly to bolster his own courage and partly because he felt he needed a partner. And so it began on a foggy rainy night, perfect for the operation the kid had in mind...

Law of the Jungle

The word organization implies a set of rules. The laws of organized crime may be summed up in one phrase obey or die the law of the jungle. The policemen of organized crime are the triggermen like Corey Taylor and Bentham Smith. Corey and Bentham were engaged one evening in the performance of their job at which they were experts. They were about to gun down mobster Vic Jones for double-crossing boss Mac Davis however Mary Parker was in the car with Vic and they failed to kill her leaving her alive and a witness. The boss sends his hit man Chuckles Madson (played by Alan Baxter) to take care of her.

Love Is Not All

On the surface Augustus Dryden is a rather likeable rascal but when you take the point of view that he used the hopes and dreams of every day men and women to cloak his more nefarious enterprises and then compounded the felony by praying on and destroying those dreams he ceases to seem likeable and shows up in his proper light, a rather despicable kind of man who received exactly what he deserved.

He was born and grew up in the slum. Red Thompson was a boy in the gutter literally as well as figuratively. There he made friends with Joey Goodwin and Lazy Clayton. They became a unit those three and whether their pursuit was annoying their teacher as long as they stayed in school or swiping fruit from an open counter Red was the leader, Lazy the echo and Joey the efficient assistant. When they were grown up the activities changed but the pattern remained the same, it was Red who planned the escapades, Red who saw no way out for them through legitimate channels, Red who found the easy way to get hold of money and it was Red who decided when it was time to collect their winnings from a character named Bookie...

311 Southgate

Night Watch is a crime “documentary” that highlights real footage of real cases. The crimes were caught on tape as reporter Donn Reid wore a wire and rode along with police officer Sergeant Ron Perkins on the night shift – from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m. when crimes were most likely to occur. It is completely unscripted with no special effects or any other kind of soundtrack. It is simply the sounds and the voices of your police force in action in real situations, which are often exciting and dramatic. In fact, Donn Reid was shot at in one episode and he was also stabbed in a different episode.

A 311 is a police reference for indecent exposure. Be warned this episode is a bit too raw for family entertainment.

I wish you were dead

Mr. Fettel is a small elderly man who "doesn't look like he belongs in a world of Airplanes and Geiger counters", and he definitely doesn't seem like the kind of guy to commit murder. But that's exactly what he confesses to Randy Stone. Mr. Fettel tells Stone that he has killed his boss, but not using a knife or a gun, just by voicing a simple wish. That sweet old man seems to hold the power over life when he says... "I wish you were dead". Of course Randy doesn't believe him for a second, but can it really be only coincidence?

Joys of Fatherhood

Randy Stone is sitting at his typewriter in the city room with no one around. He's finishing a real good yarn about an old lady and how she pioneered the Old West. The typewriter is clacking merrily on its way when a guy walks in, a fellow reporter, slightly tipsy, overcoat, tie, collar unfastened, and he flops down beside you. He throws his hat on Randy's desk and his hair looks like it just came back from a Florida hurricane. It seems this man's wife is in the hospital ready to give birth, and for the rest of this episode, Randy keeps the expectant father company and they discuss all the things that go along with fatherhood, life in general, and, well, just about everything to try to keep this father to be on an even keel.

Red Rose

Two days ago he made arrangements for his own assassination as he was bankrupt and in danger of going to prison. He had a family and two children and an insurance policy and figured that if he were to be killed his family would be taken care of. He knew that in thirty days he would be going to prison as he had embezzled money from his firm so he decided to do away with himself leaving instructions for his wife to replace the stolen funds. He knew that suicide would revoke the insurance policy so he went to the only underworld character he knew, Gimpy, and asked him to hire a professional assassin. Now his situation had changed and he no longer wanted to be killed but going to Gimpy to call off the assassin was not an option as the newspapers reported that Gimpy had himself been murdered yesterday. Now he wanted Richard Diamond to find out whom Gimpy had hired and call it off.
